Replaced the Precision Digital controller and power supply. Rewired the level sensor and programmed the controller multiple times. Could not get controller and sensor to properly control, worked on it through out the night and manually controlled the lift station through morning to insure the pumps would not run dry and the pit would not overflow. Got with Tim first thing Thursday morning and found out they had no spare sensor. Rewired pumps to work mechanically off of float switch. Pending ordering and arrival of new parts to make station properly.
